

CHANGE OF HANDS

www.the-utc.com

Change of hands refers to a shift in market control from buyers to sellers or vice versa, often indicating a potential trend change or significant price movement.

Volume Spikes:

- Sudden increase in trading volume
- Can indicate strong interest from either buyers or sellers

Price Action:

- Rapid price reversals
- Break of key support or resistance levels

Candlestick Patterns:

- Engulfing patterns
- Doji candles at market extremes

Types of Changes

Bullish Change of Hands:

Selling pressure diminishes

Buyers take control, often leading to price increases

Bearish Change of Hands:

Buying pressure diminishes

Sellers take control, often leading to price decreases

Identifying Change of Hands

1. Monitor volume in relation to price movements
2. Look for price rejection at key levels
3. Observe changes in price volatility
4. Analyse order flow data if available

Trading Strategies

1. Enter trades at the early stages of a change of hands
2. Use breakout strategies when change of hands confirms a trend change
3. Scale out of existing positions when change of hands signals potential reversal

Trading Strategies

Use tight stop losses during potential change of hands scenarios

Be prepared for increased volatility

Avoid over-trading during unclear change of hands situations

Tips

Combine with market structure analysis for better context

Consider institutional trading hours for more significant changes

Use multiple timeframe analysis to confirm larger trend changes
